Poker Heads Up Display Softwares & Statistical Databases

Filed under: Poker Strategy — admin @ 12:30 pm

You hear about it constantly on various poker web sites and among your friends. Almost everyone and anyone that plays the game of poker is checking out some kind of heads up display software for their online game. While HUD's can certainly come in handy, particularly pulling real-time information, they are banned by most of the larger and popular Online Texas Holdem poker rooms. However, there are still a number of poker rooms in the cyber sphere that allow players to use them.

Software is a tool just like a hammer or a pair of pliers. You may be able to use that tool to help you get the job done but no one tool will guarantee that you will successfully finish the job.

Heads-Up Displays \(HUD\)

One of the more popular tools today is the HUD. This software is usually downloadable from the site which it was purchased and installs within minutes. Once you have it on your PC all you need to do is pull up the online poker room of your choice and you will notice that you have instant information on all of your opponents. This information usually includes a general categorization of the players at your table. It will include how aggressive they are in pots. It will also include information on how often they fold or raise their hands. In many cases this information is customizable in real-time and that is a tremendous help to players in both cash games and poker tournaments. The draw back to using an HUD is that they are banned in the more popular poker rooms because they give the player an edge over those that do not have them. What is the edge? The edge is the information on their opponents that is not available to those that are not using HUD's. Some online poker rooms see this as an unfair advantage and do not allow them for that reason.

Did you know that you can literally pull up the information on how just about any online poker player plays his hands? There are programs available that allow you to pull up a poker table and they will download each and every hand played with the hand histories of each player at the table. Once the program has pulled this information it has several options that allow you to manipulate the data as you choose. These options include what hands are played, what position, how bets are placed and the list goes on. Armed with a large sample size a player can make a very good assessment of how well someone plays and how they like to approach the game.

There are also statistical web sites available for tournament players. You will be able to see how often a player cashes, how many final tables they make, how often do they make the final table and much much more. This kind of software or site is not that bad in that it only tells those using it how often a player cashes or makes a final table.

Dependency

The downside to using this kind of software is that a player can start to depend on it for their decision making. No piece of software should be the sole source of your making a decision at the poker table. You need to be capable of making tough decisions on your own. Also, there is always the possibility of retrieving bad information or the software doesn't poll properly or stops working all together. Then what do you do? The good online players do not necessarily use the real-time HUD's but they do analyze and study as much information on other players as they can. That is the smart way to use online poker software to your advantage.

Distinctive Poker Gift Ideas

Filed under: Poker Basics — admin @ 10:30 am

Poker Books: Whether your looking for a beginners manual or a book on improving strategy, there are numerous books available online or at the book store that any poker lover would enjoy reading. Some top picks from various sites include:

- Internet Texas Hold-Em: Winning Strategies from an Internet Pro by Matthew Hilger
- Harrington on Hold'em Volume I: Strategic Play
- Phil Gordon's Little Green Book by Phil Gordon
- The Theory of Poker by David Sklansky
- Winning Low-Limit Hold-Em (2nd Edition) by Lee Jones
- Hold-Em Poker for Advanced Players (Advance Player) by David Sklansky
- Zen and the Art of Poker: Timeless Secrets to Transform Your Game by Larry Phillips

Poker Chips: A wide variety of poker chips are available, at an equally wide variety of costs. If you're buying for a true Poker lover, Ceramic or Clay poker chips may be a good choice. Ceramic Poker Chips are casino grade chips. The graphics on these chips are actually part of the chip. Clay poker chips are rapidly becoming the most popular choice for chips. They have distinct feel and sound to them which is softer with a more solid sound. Also, they are not slippery like composite chips, which makes them stack better. Paulson poker chips have a distinct look and feel to them. These chips are true casino grade chips that are used by many casinos around the world, including well known Las Vegas casinos. You may also choose to customize your own chips with hot stamping, labels or full color chip graphics of your home casino logo.

Poker Chip Cases and/or Trays: There are a multitude of chip cases and trays on the market, from inexpensive plastic trays to outrageously expensive sets. Cases are typically made of Acrylic, vinyl, aluminum, leather or wood. Acrylic or aluminum attaché cases are an inexpensive option, however If your poker player has clay chips or more expensive collectible chips, you may want to purchase a better quality case. You can also choose from different capacity chip cases, with the ability to store anywhere from 100 to 1000 chips. There are a variety of wooden poker chip case styles you can pick from, including custom cases made to your specifications. Poker cases may include chip trays or racks that can be used to protect and store your poker chips, or can be removed to stack player's chips at the poker table.

A Poker Table: If your poker player is serious about their game, they may enjoy their own poker table to add to their home gaming experience. The options range from $30 portable table tops that just sit on top of existing tables (such as your dining room table) to dedicated Poker tables costing hundreds to thousands of dollars.

Dealer Button / Card Protectors: Having a Dealer Button is essential for playing Texas Hold-Em Poker. This is an inexpensive way to enhance your games. A dealer button is used in Texas Hold-Em to designate the theoretical dealer for a hand of poker. Dealer buttons usually look like a big poker chip (or hockey puck) and have the word ‘Dealer’ written, stamped, etched, or engraved on one or both sides. They can be quite elaborate and cost up to $100. A plastic dealer button may be purchased for a few dollars and many poker chip sets come with a button included. You can also buy “big blind” and “small blind” buttons.

A card protector (card guard) is usually a large or unique poker chip or paraphernalia that is placed on top of your hole cards to “protect” them from being collected by the dealer or another player. Poker Card protectors make a unique gift and custom protectors make them one-of-a-kind.

Card Shuffler: An automatic card shuffler shuffles one or two full decks of cards into one. Automatic card shufflers are inexpensive ($10 to $25, generally), making this another great gift for budget-conscious shoppers.

Poker Video Games: Looking to play a little poker on your Playstation, Xbox or Nintendo? Check out these poker video games that are fun to play and make great gifts for poker fans. Some favorite picks are: World Championship Poker 2; World Poker Tour 2K6; World Series of Poker; or Stacked with Daniel Negreanu.
